West Sac runner finishes marathon

By David Levin

On Sunday, Dec. 3, a record 3,800 runners participated in the 13th annual California International Marathon in Sacramento.

Conditions were perfect for the race this year. It was cool and cloudy, a runner's delight. As important as this race was to the elite runners in the field, it was even more important to the hundreds of first-time marathoners.

A number of runners ran representing leukemia patients. Donna Levin, a 20-year resident of West Sacramento, was running in memory of her brother-in-law, Fred Mann of Edmonton, Canada, who died last July after a heroic battle with Myeloma, a rare form of leukemia.

The Leukemia Society of America, with the support of various sponsors, offers a program called "Team in Training." People who could not ordinarily run a race as demanding as the 26.2 mile marathon agree to join a team, raise pledges and train long and hard to reach a goal. Many are women who have never run at all.

Donna had been running for fitness for a little over a year when she was approached by a friend who was going to coach the next "Team." She agreed to take up the challenge and her brother-in-law's illness gave it even more meaning. From the beginning, she showed incredible determination and team spirit. The training sessions were held on Wednesdays and Saturdays for six months prior to the big race.

She attended these meetings faithfully, and received training from professionals on running technique, equipment, nutrition, fund raising and other aspects of the marathon. For many of the women, it was the first experience being on an athletic team of any kind.

The kind of camaraderie and team spirit that men so often take for granted is very inspiring to women who have not had the chance to experience it before.

The members of the team improved their running dramatically. In September, Donna did the ten-mile Davis Buffalo Stampede in a time of 1:28 (an hour and 28 minutes) -- better than a nine minute pace for each mile! Unfortunately, the increased speed and mileage took a toll on many of the team members, and injuries were common. Donna's knees were questionable. The last six weeks before the race, she was unable to train as hard as she would have liked.

When the big day came, she and her teammates were up to the challenge! All the ladies, including Donna, came through like champions and gathered for a good healthy cry at the finish line. The times ranged from 3:09 to 5:30, but what mattered most was finishing and fulfilling the goal which they had set for themselves so many months before. Although it is a little soon to think about another race, with feet and legs still sore from the last one, the Leukemia Society is already planning its next training group. This one will take runners to Anchorage, Alaska, for the Midnight Marathon.

Sounds like quite an adventure, doesn't it?

Christmas basket program gears up to feed the needy

By Steve Marschke

The West Sacramento Christmas Basket Project, organized by community volunteers every year to bring a holiday dinner to the needy, is proceeding at a rapid clip.

"We've got approximately 450 families signed up to receive baskets so far," said Helena Helmold, who chairs the project this year. "We continue signing up through the 15th. We're ahead of last year for signups."

Last year, the project produced and distributed baskets for over 1,000 families.

Each recipient family will receive a basket designed for their family size. Baskets will include poultry (for homeless people with no cooking facilities, canned ham will be substituted), potatoes, rice, fruit, vegetables, pasta, bread, milk and toys for the children.

Helmold estimates that about $20,000 worth of goods will be distributed. The goods will be donated or purchased from donated money

Overhead such as gasoline, telephone calls and other incidental expenses incurred by project volunteers is paid out of the pockets of the volunteers.

"Only postage for our mailing is paid with donated money. Other than that, every penny donated goes to food, except for money specifically designated for toys."

The Christmas Basket Project is the city's largest single volunteer effort all year.

"Everybody in the community is taking part," said Helmold. "The VFW just called and said, 'come pick some stuff up,' and they had a whole garbage pail of donations. The residents of Crystal Ct. last year raised several cans of donations. I get so proud of West Sacramento at Christmas basket time, I just can't say enough about it."

HELENA HELMOLD

'I get so proud of West Sacramento at Christmas basket time, I just can't say enough about it.'

-- Helena Helmold

Helmold added that because demand for the baskets remains high, there is still a need for donated labor, money, food and toys.

Planning commission meets:

Over a thousand homes set for city approval in Southport's 'Bayside' project

By Steve Marschke

A development project called "probably the largest subdivision that will take place in Southport in the near future" will be considered for approval this Thursday by the West Sacramento Planning Commission.

The "Gainsborough Project," championed by the Bayside Southport JV partnership (which includes partner David Stroud), covers 310 acres just south of the Southport Industrial Park Property. It lies on the north side of Marshall Road, west of both Allan Ave. and Marshall Rd.

Plans call for 1,378 single family homes, some multi-family housing, an eight acre elementary school site, and 18.9 acres of park areas.

The Gainsborough Project occupies almost an entire "village" -- one of four such planned for the 7,000 acre Southport area by the city's Southport Framework Plan.

Commercial services to serve this village, however, are planned for just north of Gainsborough in the south part of the Southport Industrial Park property. City planners will have a chance to approve the project's proposed map at Thursday's public hearing.

City planning director Steve Patek joined partner David Stroud and city planner Steve Rikala in discussing the project with the News-Ledger last week.

"The actual physical development of the property is tied to everything else that has to happen, including the (planned) Palamidessi Bridge," said Stroud. "Soon, the city council will be hearing a 'resolution of intention' (from Bayside, Southport Industrial Park and a second residential builder) detailing a bond proposal for next year."

The bond proposal would cover construction of the bridge as well as the construction of a major new road connecting the residential project to that new bridge, so that Gainsborough will have minimum impact on Jefferson Blvd. traffic flow.

"Initial access for this project will be off this road," added Patek, "although there will probably be some emergency access to Marshall Road."

Stroud said that the project will be built in phases after the bridge is complete -- now hoped for mid-1997. Pacing of construction will partly depend on the still-struggling real estate market.

"It doesn't happen very quickly," he said. "It would be very favorable for a builder to be involved in a project where they're selling three or four homes a week. 15 or 20 homes per month would be very aggressive."

Stroud said that he hopes to have several different builders constructing portions of the project.

The north area of the development includes medium density development, with close to seven units per acre, said planner Rikala. The other half of the residential development will be on larger lot sizes.

The project "exceeds" requirements of the Southport Framework Plan for through-block pedestrian and bike trails, and for

City to consider allowing new trucking locations

At the request of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce and the local trucking industry, the city planning commission will consider a zoning change to allow more locations for trucking terminals in the city.

Currently prohibited east of I-80 (which splits from US 50 to run northeast across Reed Ave. in West Sacramento), trucking terminals would be permitted to open up or expanded in any heavy industrial or waterfront commercial zone.

The planning commission will hold a public hearing on the trucking issue at 6 p.m. on Thursday, at the city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento.

Mother seeks help after thieves take sons' clothes

Thieves have made life difficult for a West Sacramento family, making off with two boxes of children's clothes (which stacked about four feet high) from the family's patio.

Gina Bojorques said the theft made her so angry she not only filed a police report, but put a sign up at her home with the message to the thief that "God is watching you."

She is asking for help from the community in replacing the clothes for her two sons.

The Broderick Christian Center at 110 6th St. has agreed to accept and hold clothing donations for the Bojorques boys. Anyone able to donate clothes in boys' sizes five or six is asked to contact the center.

My Back Pages

Have you ever asked yourself why in the world sky drivers wear safety helmets? I mean, it seems to me that anyone who is willing to voluntarily jump out of an airplane which is cruising along at 10,000 feet probably needs to have his or her head examined, not protected. But who knows, maybe someday I'll pick up the newspaper and one of the headlines will read: 'Sky diver's parachute fails -- He falls 7,000 feet to earth and lands on head -- Thank God he was wearing his safety helmet'.

*****

I was going for a little walk the other evening with a friend who was visiting me from Vacaville when he suddenly said, "Don't you just hate that?"

"Hate what?" I asked.

"That," he said, pointing to a "For Sale -- By Owner" sign which was staked in the front yard of the house we were passing.

I nodded my head in agreement, although I didn't have the foggiest idea what he was talking about. "I mean," he continued, "who else could be selling the darn thing -- the neighbors?"

*****

I have a friend whom I'm convinced is accident prone. She is constantly banging up her fingers and toes, foul balls at Little League games either whiz by her ear or slam into her knee, and recently she even somehow managed to pull a huge grandfather clock down on top of her. But when I mention the fact that she might be accident prone, she vehemently denies it and has a tendency to throw things at me or call me names I can't print in a family newspaper. When I mentioned this to my wife the other evening, she smiled and pointed to a group portrait of our four children, which sits proudly on top of the piano in our living room.

"And your point is?" I asked.

"My point is that not one of them was planned -- remember?"

"So?"

"So if you really think about it, that probably makes us the two most accident prone people we know."

*****

My daughter decided she just had to have some ravioli from Club Pheasant the other evening, so she asked me to phone in a take-out order for her.

"I don't know the number," I said.

"Either do I," she said, "I'll call information."

The next thing I know, she is laughing her head off. "What's so funny?" I asked her as she hung up the receiver.

"Has a 411 operator ever once talked to you in your whole entire life?"

"Never," I admitted, recalling how all they ever do is ask me what city I want, push a few computer keys, and then reluctantly say, 'Okay, here's your number'. "Why?"

"Because that one just talked to me?"

"You're kidding? What did she say?"

"Well, I told her I wanted the number for Club Pheasant in West Sacramento, right, and then there was this big long pause."

"And then what?"

"And then she actually spoke to me."

"What did she say?"

"She said -- and I swear I could hear her salivating -- 'You know, I haven't had one of their incredible steak sandwiches in years'."

*****

My kids haven't said or done anything funny in ages. Have yours? If so, please drop me a line at the News-Ledger or give me a call at 372-6174. Not only is this column in desperate need of some humorous kid stories, but with Christmas only a few weeks away, can you think of a better gift to give your children than to embarrass them in their local newspaper?

Eight 'johns' arrested in sweep

From the West Sacramento Police Department

On November 30, the West Sacramento Police Department combined resources with both the Sacramento Police Department and the Sacramento Sheriffs Department to conduct the first regional task force approach to managing the prostitution problem within our respective communities.

This multi agency approach is the outgrowth of several meetings between the respective agencies to discuss the prostitution problem. The agreement to work together will provide personnel and equipment not normally available.

As a result of the Nov. 30 operation conducted, eight customers and six prostitutes were taken into custody. The operation was conducted along West Capitol Avenue in West Sacramento, and spanned approximately six hours.

Those customers fitting the guidelines established by this department will have information sent to their homes concerning the risks of exposure to communicable diseases through association with prostitutes.

Elks club feeds 13 local families

Each year the members of the West Sacramento Elks Lodge join together to prepare complete thanksgiving dinners for families in the West Sacramento area who would not otherwise have a Thanksgiving. This year, under the guidance of Meryle Mottern, the Elks and Ladies of the lodge prepared just such a feast, including turkeys, dressing, vegetables, potatoes and pies, for 13 families and distributed them in time for the Thanksgiving holiday.

SPORTS

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The 49ers' defense came to the rescue again last week when linebacker Lee Woodall picked up a Buffalo fumble and ran 96 yards for a game-winning touchdown.

Derek Loville was the offense hero of the game, rushing for 88 yards and a touchdown. Loville also had ten catches for 86 yards in the 49ers' 27-17 victory over the Bills.

The 49ers travel to Carolina as 14-point favorites next Sunday. The 49ers will win big, as they look to repay the Panthers for that 13-7 loss in week ten. 49ers 37, Panthers 6.

The Raiders (8-5) lost their third game in a row as the Kansas City Chiefs wrapped up the AFC West title with a 29-23 win. It was a typical Kansas City-Oakland game. Flared tempers, fights and Raiders penalties (13 for 105 yards).

The Raiders host the Pittsburgh Steelers (9-4) next Sunday. The Steelers won the AFC Central title last week with their victory over Houston. If the Raiders start QB Billy Joe Hobert, they could win this game. Oakland 24, Pittsburgh 17.

The Sacramento Kings (12-4) are off to the best start in team history. The Kings beat three good teams last week in Denver, Indiana and Colorado. This week, they face three more playoff teams with Seattle on Friday, Miami on Sunday and the defending NBA champion Houston Rockets on Tuesday.

Sarunas Marciulionis has been superb off the bench, averaging 16.3 points and making 56 percent (10-18) of his three pointers for the week.

See ya next week!!

Guest Opinion:

Prevent trouble: take an active role in your kids' lives

'Yolo Unite' is a non-profit organization designed to combat substance abuse and other problems in Yolo County.

By Andy Porras
Yolo Unite

Don't send your children to church.

Take them.

Simple advice from a man I called Dad. The man always took care of his children first.

Somewhere along the way to becoming the nation's most populous state, attending church or other worthwhile family oriented activity, ceased to be a priority causing us to lose track of many of our children.

There seems to be a consensus among "experts" that Californians (and that includes Yolo County, folks) must take an active role in making children first. If not, we're to suffer the consequences.

For example, take a long, hard look at these facts:

Eighty percent of the state's youngsters in jail are high school dropouts and, studies show, they had no contact with their father;

Thirty percent of those in jail are the result of a teen pregnancy;

Eighty percent of the crimes are committed by those between the ages of 13 and 22 years.

If those stats don't put a scare in you, add this piece of information, crime in our state is expected to increase by 29 percent over the next eight years. You'd think we were in a children crisis.

How can we combat this? What can an ordinary Joe or Jose do about this madness?

The problem is not crime. The problem is taking things for granted.

Listen to what Dr. Michael Stewart, an award-winning author on issues affecting families, had to say at a recent conference:

"We all came to expect that the historical role of the family has been passed on to churches, schools, and the government," said Dr. Stewart. "Government, for one, deals with the three P's, pooches (animal control), potholes, and police, what we need to do is add another P, for prevention!"

Prevention. That's our cue. This is where Yolo Unite can lend you a helping hand.

"Traditionally, the home is where we all learned about democracy, self-governance and representative government," said Dr. Stewart, who's also the director of the International Year of the Family. "When the family begins to shrivel, these very ideals are threatened, but there's no one person in a community today who will solve these problems, each one of us must take an active role and start a revolution."

Revolution? To care about our children. Hey, by whatever means necessary, right?

Dad had simple rules back then, and who knows they probably still work. Our family spent time together, we had some rules and expectations which were agreed on by all of the family.

In their own way, our parents promoted self-esteem and not only did we set goals, we talked about them. Often.

It was okay to pull a boo-boo or not reach certain peaks in our school activities. We learned that failing is a right also. We were rewarded for successes, not senseless achievements.

Living near school and not having a school cafeteria proved to be a blessing. At lunch we went home and sat around a table (not TV-trays) and communicated.

Dr. Stewart lists several activities parents can incorporate into their task of raising children that may have a direct, positive impact on them. Here are some:

Encourage dialogue about learning and school -- even the simple question, "What did you do in school today?" -- may do wonders and could open up lines of communication.

Read in front of your children -- they are great imitators.

Get involved in your child's school. Employers should provide one-hour paid leave per employee each week for them to get involved with their child's school.

Attend parenting classes.

Teach the Ten Commandments not necessarily as religious values but as social values.

Have male mentors in homes where fathers are not present.

Tell your children that education is important to you too.

Nobody ever said being a parent was going to be a breeze. Most of us constantly wish to become 50 percent as good as our parents were.

Let's strive for better odds. Too many kids are depending on us.

Children first.

Sound Off!

When you put your sports articles in the paper, I would like to know whether the local team is 8-2, 1-8, whatever is their overall record.

I never find these standings in any of your sports writings.

Could we please have those?. . .

Letters to the Editor

Love thy neighbor?

I can't think of a more unpleasant task than to criticize the local Christmas Basket Program but I note (in today's paper) that the Broderick Christian Center is once again requiring needy families to produce Social Security cards to receive a basket. My objection remains the same as stated last Christmas. Would you please reprint the letter? Thanks.
Dec., 1994

I am the last person in the world to criticize the West Sacramento Christmas Basket Program. Like everyone, I consider it a wonderful tradition and contribute to it every year. Nevertheless, I am alarmed to read one of the requirements for receiving a basket.

I understand why there is a "needs" test requiring a paycheck stub or Medi-Cal card (and additional I.D. card or Driver's License to cross check) to validate the name on the "needs" documentation. A means test is always necessary to fairly administer a program directed toward those under a certain income level.

I also understand why there is a requirement of a rent receipt or utility bill to determine that a person lives in our town. It is only right that each city has it's own program for local residents.

What I don't understand is why a final rule is tacked on that reads "AND a Social Security card." If the rule said "OR," meaning a card could be used as an optional piece of identification if no other I.D. is available, it would be reasonable. But to stipulate a Social Security card as a separate requirement means the Christian Center is asking for proof of citizenship.

As a professional social worker employed by the government I was forced to ask for proof of citizenship. As a volunteer and employee of various private social service programs, we never asked for proof of citizenship if the family met our "needs assessment." Anyone with a legitimate need for food or warm clothing (or referral and information) was welcome.

I am appalled to read of instances in L.A. where private programs (some even church sponsored) turn away people who can't prove their citizenship after passage of Prop. 187. Surely, this isn't happening here. I hope I am unduly concerned and this is just a misprint by your newspaper or an oversight on the part of those setting policy.

In these dark days of immigrant bashing, I would not want to participate in any program that adds to their sense of alienation and fear. After all, it was a territorial tax issue that forced Mary to take that long arduous trip to Bethlehem.

As outsiders, Mary and Joseph were treated as second class citizens when they sought a room at the Inn.

Jesus did not teach "love thy neighbor who has a Social Security card as thyself." Jesus did not teach "what we do unto the least of them possessing Social Security cards, we do unto Him." The Golden Rule is not "Do unto others who have Social Security cards as you want others to do unto you."

The Christmas Spirit (the Holy Spirit) must be all inclusive. We are all the children of God and loved equally in His sight. I'm almost positive St. Peter isn't asking for a Social Security card to pass through the golden gates. How can we celebrate our Savior's birth and turn our back on His message? Peace.

Fee increase

While mulling over the proposed increase in sewer fees a few comments seem to be in order. First, the finance department made a good case for the increase and I believe it is well justified. If you do the numbers it appears the total increase per year will be about $92,000 more than the requested $801,000. The "new" hook up fees will probably rise by the same percentage as our monthly bill and all the excess over the requested amount will probably go into the depleted reserve fund. And when the reserve fund gets too large, all the rate payers will get a rebate. Even us taxpayers have a good dream once in a while. Anyway, I think the raise is justified.

While we are on the subject on money matters, it would sure be nice to have SMUD for an electrical supplier rather than PG&E. If you run the figures out for just residential, not counting commercial and industrial, it comes to a savings of $315,956 per month. This is based on an average savings of $28.57 per residence X the 11,094 residential customers. Tack on the commercial and industrial customers and the savings start looking like close to $4,000,000 per year.

Not bad for a small town like ours. Maybe our city fathers (read that council) can sweet talk SMUD into some kind of a deal, now that utility suppliers are losing their monopolies.

I think the whole City of West Sacramento staff is doing a heck of a good job. My thanks.

Help out

The holidays are a time of renewed hope. They provide the chance to recall good times shared with family and friends, and to look ahead to the new year. While tragic stories of family violence have filled the media, here in Yolo County hundreds of women and their children have begun to rebuild their lives. This year they will celebrate their holidays free of violence for the first time.

In the past year, the Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Center of Yolo County has provided crisis intervention, safe shelter at Harper House, counseling, and education to hundreds of women, children and men.

As we enjoy this holiday season, let us also remember those who are working to overcome physical and sexual abuse. Your gift will help build hope and bring joy to the women and children who are rebuilding their lives.

Please join me this holiday season in honoring the work of the Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Center and the families it serves by sending one of the following items to the center:

- Presents for women and children (bathrobes, toys, slippers, sweaters and jackets (new), department store gift certificates, etc.);
- Grocery store gift certificates ($10-$25) from any major supermarket chain;
- Foodstuff (canned: tuna,

Winter Fire Prevention

Holidays are a time of celebration. City employees would like to extend best wishes in this holiday season for your safe holiday. Listed below are a few tips to keep you and yours safe through the winter months.

Christmas Tree Care

- Clean the tree stand with a capful of bleach mixed with water. This reduces the growth of organisms that can block the tree's intake of water.
- Select a fresh tree. Needles should not easily pull from the branches and should not break when gently bent.
- Recut the trunk at least one inch. Put it in water immediately and keep the tree watered daily.
- Locate the tree away from heat sources, including T.V.'s. Do not block exits with the tree or rearranged furniture.
- Use only UL approved tree lights. Do not connect more than 200 midget lights on one cord.
- Check lights BEFORE putting them on your tree. After inspecting the lights, place them on a fireproof surface and let them run for 15 minutes. Replace any which smoke, melt, overheat or are worn.
- Never leave lights on for prolonged periods of time. Turn the lights off and the room heat down when leaving or retiring for the night.
- Remove the tree from the house as soon as possible after Christmas. Never burn a Christmas tree or package wrappings in a fireplace or wood stove.
- Never use a damaged electrical cord. Should you discover a frayed or sparking electrical cord always shut off the ciruit breaker controlling that plug before removing the damaged cord.

Christmas Tree Disposal

On your normal recycling day, place your tree at the curb. Trees may also be dropped off at Riverside Tree Farm, 1320 Linden Rd. until January 15. Flocked trees cannot be accepted and must be disposed of with normal garbage.

More Winter Safety Tips

Check your smoke alarms.

Fireplace/Wood Burning Stove

The majority of fires involving fireplaces or wood burning stoves start because of inadequate clearances, defective chimneys, and overfiring. A wood burning stove should be installed, operated, and maintained according to specific building code regulations and the manufacturer's guidelines. Installation of wood burning stoves requires inspection by local authorities. Cracks in the flue lining, birds' nests in the chimney, and creosote buildup in the chimney can all contribute to a chimney fire. Periodically, consult a contractor or chimney cleaning service.

Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

By shutting the house against winter cold, people are sometimes overcome by carbon monoxide poisoning. To avert this, install a carbon monoxide detector. Have faulty heaters checked by a competent dealer or repair service.

Firefighters to give Santa a tour of city

Over 20 years ago the West Sacramento Firefighters Association decided to do something for the children in the community at Christmas time. The firefighers decorated the fire truck with lights and music for Santa to appear. As they drove through the neighborhoods handing out candy they also collected nonperishable food for the food basket which distributes food to the needy. The firefighters have enjoyed volunteering their time for a great event that everyone in our community looks forward to during the holidays.

So enjoy the fun and if you can donate food there will be a pickup following the fire truck to collect your contribution.

Santa's schedule is listed as follows:

Davis resident and county supervisor Helen Thomson elected CSAC president

Yolo County Supervisor Helen Thomson was elected first vice president of the California State Association of Counties (CSAC) on November 30 during the association's 101st annual meeting in San Jose. Also elected were San Mateo County Supervisor Michael Nevin, president; and El Dorado County Supervisor John Upton, second vice president.

Nevin represents urban counties, while Thomson and Upton represent suburban and rural counties, respectively. Thomson served as the association's second vice president in 1994-95.

"It's an excellent opportunity for leadership given the changing roles and relationships among federal, state and local government. I am really looking forward to working with all California supervisors as we address issues of government reform, commented Thomson."

Thomson was re-elected to a third term on the Yolo County Board of Supervisors in June 1994. She has served on a number of CSAC committees and task forces, including the Board of Directors and Executive Committee. She served as chair of the Health and Human Services Policy Committee and was a member of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee.

She is also a member of the California Elected Women's Association for Education and Research and served on the Davis Joint United School District Board of Education from 1974-1986. Thomson and her husband, Cap, have three young adult children: Morag, Iain and Mungo.

CSAC is a nonprofit corporation that promotes the interest of California's 58 counties before the state Legislature and Congress.

One of the association's goals is to educate the public about the value and need for county programs and services. Founded in 1895, CSAC is headquartered in Sacramento and has a research office in Washington, D.C.

Author of West Sacramento city history takes on story of Woodland's past

Woodland, City of Trees: A History is the fifth and newest book in a series on county communities published by the Yolo County Historical Society.

Author of this latest volume is Shipley Walters, well-known throughout the area as a local historian.

Earlier, she wrote West Sacramento, The Roots of a New City; Clarksburg; Delta Community; and Knights Landing, The River, The Land, and The People. In addition to the historical series, she has written The Church of St. Martin: The First Forty Years, and eleven oral family histories that were published privately. She also co-authored Yolo County: Land of Changing Patterns with Joann Larkey.

This latest book is a detailed and ambitious stroll through the history of a community proud of its beginnings and of the well-preserved historic buildings and homes that mark its past. It provides the kind of historic "stroll" or armchair journey that was not possible earlier.

Copies of the Walters book will be available early in December for $15 plus tax. They may be found in Woodland at the Corner Drug Company, Dodie's Collectibles, Antiques on Main, and the Yolo County Historical Museum; in Davis at The Avid Reader and Gayle's Books; and in Winters at the Winters Antique Company.

Copies of the Woodland history book may also be ordered by mail. To do so, send a check for $15, plus $3.59 for sales tax and shipping, to the Yolo County Historical Society, P.O. Box 1447, Woodland, CA, 95776.

To celebrate the publication of this latest book in their community series and to honor its author, the Yolo County Historical Society is hosting a reception and book-signing on Sunday afternoon, December 10, from 1 to 3 p.m., in the lobby of the Hotel Woodland, presently undergoing renovation.

Hookers

Most people know there is a serious prostitution problem in West Sacramento. Nobody seems interested in doing anything about it. Many people think that it is strictly a victimless crime. Nothing could be further from the truth. It's a major cause of crime in West Sacramento.

Recently at the corner of West Capitol and West Acres Road, a location that seems to attract prostitutes and their pimps somebody fired a gun that broke window glass and injured a number of children at the McDonalds on the corner. Is that a victimless crime? Are people going to be afraid to go out at night because of the prostitutes and the criminals they hang out with have taken over the streets.

The police say they can't do anything about the prostitution problem in West Sacramento. I once lived in Santa Monica. When prostitutes took over a main street, they had been pushed out of Hollywood, the police cracked down and they were all gone within a week. If they are arrested a dozen times a day they will get the message and leave. You have what are known as "hooker cops." They are either paid in services of cash by prostitutes so that they will leave the "girls" to practice their crime with impunity. I have no direct knowledge that hooker cops operate in West Sac. The West Sacramento police seem to be targeting "johns" which doesn't do much good because they appear to come from other cities, a recent news item stated that prostitutes are getting to be older and more criminally sophisticated than they once were.

At the corner of Fourth and T Streets in Sacramento some years back, dozens of prostitutes hung out. The local residents finally solved the problem by picketing the girls at that intersection. This could solve the problem in West Sac. If the girls and the places where they live were picketed, it should work.

A recent news item stated that one in thirty of black males now have the AIDS virus and they are frequently the pimps of prostitutes. How many of the general population -- males and females -- are going to be killed by prostitutes via the AIDS virus? Many thousands or even millions.

Up with tree farms!

During the holiday season, as you are waling along the footpath of your favorite Christmas tree lot or choose and cut three farm, take some time to think about how all those trees got there.

At one time, all Christmas trees were cut from natural stands, i.e. from the forest. As you can imagine, these wild trees looked nothing like today's professionally grown and sheared trees. Today, of the 34 million trees sold every year, more than 95 percent are shipped or sold from U.S. Christmas tree farms.

Typically, the growing process begins in nurseries where seed is planted and grown to two-year old seedlings. The trees are then transplanted to Christmas tree farms. Does the grower now sit back and watch the trees grow? No, the work has just begun. Christmas tree growing is a year-round job that takes a good deal of patience, diligence, and experience. There are many hazards facing the tree during its growth period: too much of too little such or rain; destruction by insects, disease, or fire; overgrowth of brush, vines, and weeds, or theft. It takes about five years for a tree to reach its harvest height. During that time it must be shaped and pruned twice a year to produce the lush, fully shaped trees that consumers demand.

Most of these Christmas trees come from U.S. growers regardless of where you buy them. They constitute a significant agricultural commodity, a renewable resource, and best of all, they are an established tradition of Christmas time.

Money Store & buses

The concept of having Money Store build their new headquarters on Raley's Landing is quite sound and should give "Old West Sacramento" the redevelopmental kick-start it needs. Third Street will be widened and will have bus service, I was assured at the November 29 City Council meeting.

One of the best to follow Money Store would be a major buffet restaurant; e.g., J.J. North's, Home Town Buffet or Golden Corral...the latter "eventually plans to have 20 restaurants in the greater Sacramento and 200 in California." (Bee, F-1, 11/17/95). Once we have a major eatery in such a relatively undeveloped area, many will be attracted to it on a continuous basis...what better way for word to get around for potential investors of remaining nearby property? Would not such an eatery nicely complement just about any other new development? West Sacramento had one for over 20 years and did quite well until renaming U.S. Hwy. 880 to I-80 and changing what was I-80 to Business 80 "took West Capitol Avenue off the map." That action reduced traffic on West Capitol Avenue and that buffet restaurant's business by about 75 percent, I was told. With lease payments constant, no wonder it had to fold.

But chains like the three mentioned above, they have the capital -- or their franchises do -- to build the facility and to "jump-start it," financially speaking. And since land is limited, maybe such a buffet eatery would be but the first floor for a hotel and/or office building. Potential property tax revenues, etc. should outweigh the city's cost of providing city services; i.e., a financial plus.

Where's the financing coming from? Maybe the Money Store can help. We will see at the December 6 City Council meeting. When I see several (mostly retired) West Sacramentans at the J.J. North's on Howe Avenue two or three times a week, what does that tell us? Where are they then most likely to spend the rest of their day while spending more money? Not likely in West Sacramento, but opening Harbor Blvd. to unrestricted 2-way traffic by December 11 -- even if all work is not complete -- will be better for everyone.

Bus drivers accepting toys for tots

Yolobus, Handi-Van, and Dial-a-Lift transit systems, in conjunction with Marine Corps League Detachment #627, will be collecting toys on each bus as part of the "Toys for Tots" program. This is the twelfth year that the Yolo County Transit Authority has participated in this program.

Founded by the U.S. Marine Corps, this program is intended to provide a bit of Christmas cheer for children who might otherwise have nothing under the tree.

Toys will be collected on Yolobus, Handi-Van, and Dial-a-Lift, beginning immediately. The last day to donate a toy is December 20. Toys collected on the buses will be distributed to the needy in Yolo County. For individuals who would like to deliver the toys themselves, they can be delivered to ATE/RYDER at 2599 Evergreen Avenue in West Sacramento.

Toys can be delivered to the Yolo County Transit Authority at 1495 East Street, Suite A, Woodland, or given to any Yolobus driver.

Yolo County property tax payments now due and payable

Clyde K. Brooker, Yolo County Tax Collector, reminds taxpayers who own property in Yolo County that the first amendment of 1995-96 Secured Property Tax is now due and payable.

Property taxes become delinquent if not paid by 5:00 p.m. on Monday, December 11, 1995, after which a ten percent penalty must be added. Envelopes must be postmarked no later than December 11, 1995, if taxes are paid by mail.

It is suggested that payments be mailed a few days before the December 11 deadline to insure that the envelope will have the proper postmark.

Persons have questions concerning their tax bill should contact the tax collector's office in room 102 of the Erwin W. Meier Administration Building in Woodland.

The telephone number is 375-6486.
